Dear Scottish Mesh Survivors,

I'm grateful to once again have this opportunity to wish you all the best for this year's festive season. 2020 has seen some important developments in your fight to have the injustices experienced by mesh survivors rectified, and these gains would not have been achieved without your tireless campaigning.

As always, I have been in awe of your perseverance, bravery and dignity while raising awareness of the hardships you have faced and working to ensure that no one else has to experience all that you have been through. Please know that I and many others in Parliament support these efforts and that we will continue to stand with you during 2021 and beyond. I sincerely hope that next year will see more progress towards justice for mesh survivors and I look forward to working with you.

While our Christmas and New Year celebrations may not be what we have come to expect, I wish you and yours all the very best for the year ahead. Take care of yourselves. I am thinking of you all.

Yours sincerely,

Alison Johnstone MSP
